It’s a pleasure to welcome you to this 2014 Macmillan catalogue.

Whether you’re a teacher looking for print or digital material, an educational institution wishing to combine excellent content with top-quality training services for your staff or a student hoping to find new ideas to try out, I’m sure you’ll find plenty to interest you.

As ever, we are able to offer you the very best in pedagogical value by offering a range of new titles in addition to a full catalogue of existing favourites.

Our materials reflect 170 years of history, years in which Macmillan has gained a position at the forefront of education and research. We’ve come a long way since the Macmillan brothers founded the company in 1843. Our Macmillan Science and Education division now operates in 120 countries and continues to be driven by a vision to push the frontiers of learning and discovery by delivering quality content and innovative teaching solutions, tailored to the differing needs of classrooms around the world.

Despite our extensive experience in the area of education, never before has Macmillan witnessed such an exciting transformation in the way in which people learn, teach and discover. We continue to develop products to support shifting educational paradigms. In the words of Macmillan's CEO, Annette Thomas:

“Today the way in which people learn and teach have changed seismically. From interactive textbooks and tests to adaptive learning, ‘flipped classrooms’ and customized and open source content, there has never been such an exciting time to be part of the education landscape.”

Developments in the area of technology are revolutionising the way we function on a daily basis, and classrooms, here and all over the world, are adapting to support this.

Macmillan Iberia has been offering tailored teaching solutions for Spain for over 25 years and continues to grow through the provision of new and innovative educational services.

Macmillan Training Services offers specialist consultancy and mentoring services for schools looking to expand or improve upon their English language teaching. Last year also saw the launch of ByME, an exciting joint venture with publisher Edelvives, which combines our own expertise in ELT methodology and content with that of a curriculum-focused publisher. This has allowed us to produce an exclusive collection of materials, specially tailored to meet the needs of bilingual Spanish schools.

Macmillan Profesional continues to expand its range of top-quality titles for vocational students, and we’re proud of our partnership with Hueber, the leading publisher of German language teaching material.

Macmillan is committed to supporting teachers by providing teaching solutions and training that reflect the shifting educational paradigm, whilst recognising the challenges this represents.

We view transformation as an opportunity to stimulate progress and innovation and to uncover new areas of education and discovery. We look forward to continuing to work in partnership with teachers, to learn and discover in unison and to produce workable teaching solutions which support and inspire tomorrow’s generation.

We thank you for your partnership and together look forward to continuing to pursue our common objective of inspiring curious minds to achieve great things!

Marta Martínez
Macmillan Iberia Managing Director

Our online Teacher’s Corner delivers additional teaching tips and ideas for engaging activities.

Practical Teaching Tip
When teaching phonics, review all the sounds you have taught previously before introducing a new one. Stick the grapheme cards on the board and point to each one in turn. Make sure the children are confident in making the sounds before you move on.

Parent’s Benefits
- Using a Macmillan Pre-primary book means parents have a record of what their children are learning in class.
- Parents can support their children’s learning at home by singing along to the songs and using the CD-ROM.
Practical Teaching Tip

At the beginning of every lesson, write the learning objectives for the day on the board and tell children about them. At the end of the class, erase the objectives and quiz a couple of pupils to see if they have retained the lesson for the day.

Schools in bilingual and trilingual programmes, wishing to combine English language development with a comprehensive Arts and Crafts curriculum.

From works of art to working with art!

- The curriculum ensures that both language and skills development is gradual and structured. Each unit builds on prior knowledge and reinforces skills developed in previous units, ensuring a solid progression in all areas.

- The course provides opportunities for pupils to work both individually and in groups, focusing closely on cooperative learning skills.
- Cross-curricular links provide coherence in language development across all subject areas and optimise the opportunities for consolidation and practice of target language.

What makes Arts & Crafts special

“The elements of art – lines, shapes, colours, textures, forms and space – are the building blocks an artist uses to create a work of art. They are also the building blocks we used when developing this course. Let them inspire in your pupils an understanding and love of art. All in English!”

Reflections

Hall of the Ambassadors, Alhambra Palace, Granada, Joaquín Sorolla y Bastida. 1909

How do artists show reflections in a painting?

Water can act like a mirror. It reflects light and images. This painting shows the reflection of a building.

The reflection is upside down and symmetrical to the building. The imaginary line between the building and the water is called the axis of symmetry.

The reflection of an object in water is not as clear as the real object. Artists blend colours and show fewer details in the reflection.

How are the reflections in the photograph and the painting the same?

Practical Teaching Tip

In one of the lessons towards the end of term, give the pupils a checklist of the activities you would like them to do in English over the holiday. Challenge them to do all or some of these activities at least once before they return to school in September. As pupils do each activity, they should get a parent or relative to sign the checklist.
